Mock Caldecott Voting

Would you like to help select the 40 books used for the Mock Caldecott discussions held in January? If so, here is your opportunity! Many of this year's best picture books are at RCLS for you to browse and vote on. Contact Eileen Acosta (ext. 221 or eacosta@rcls.org) to make an appointment. The last day to preview the books is Wednesday, November 27.

Can't make it to RCLS? The Mock Caldecott books will travel to three locations in December:

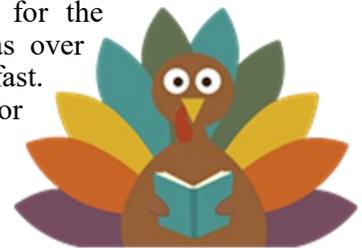

- December 2-6: Nanuet Library
- December 9-13: New City Library
- December 16-20: Valley Cottage Library

Call the Children's Room at the appropriate library to schedule a time to view the books.

A new option this year is online voting. If you cannot attend a preview at any of the four locations, you can fill out an online ballot at Survey Monkey.

Juvenile Book Preview Session

There is still time to sign up for the Juvenile Book Preview, which has over 1,000 titles. Spots are filling up fast. Contact Eileen Acosta (ext. 221 or eacosta@rcls.org) to make an appointment. The last day is Wednesday, November 27. For details, visit the RCLS website.

Adult Program Roundtable

Tuesday, December 3 at 10:30 a.m., the Newburgh Free Library will host an Adult Program Roundtable for library programmers to share information on presenters, performers and best practices in library programming. Bring one copy of each flyer from your most successful programs of the past year and business cards from performers. Attendees will be able to snap photos with their phones.

Use the RCLS Calendar to register for this program.

Public Library Responses to the Opioid Crisis

PLA, Nov. 6

The Public Library Association (PLA) and OCLC have released two new publications that demonstrate how public libraries are responding to the opioid crisis in their communities. In September 2018, the two organizations launched a collaborative project to collect and share knowledge and resources to support public libraries and their community partners in addressing this national health crisis. A summary report highlights the findings from eight case study sites, highlights emerging practices of how libraries are responding to the crisis in collaboration with their partners, and identifies both the opportunities and barriers that libraries should consider.

The Case for Eliminating Library Fines

CityLab, Oct. 2

Linda Poon writes, “The decision to remove library fines is a growing nationwide movement. Already, dozens of US libraries have fully or partially eliminated overdue fines (usually for teens and children), according to a fine-free map from the Urban Libraries Council (ULC). In 2019, public libraries in Phoenix, Dallas, and Palm Beach, Florida, have changed their policies, and Curtis Rogers, ULC communications director, expects more to follow suit. San Francisco Public Library reformed its overdue fine policy in September. Before that, more than a third of library cardholders owed libraries money, averaging roughly $24 per adult, according to the city’s own research.”

Libraries Ready to Code

Computer Science Education Week (CSEdWeek), December 9-15, 2019, is an annual event to get students excited about coding. American Library Association’s (ALA) initiative Libraries Ready to Code, sponsored by Google, aims to ensure that libraries have the resources, capacity, and inspiration to embrace activities that promote computational thinking (CT) and computer science (CS) among our nation’s youth. Build your library’s capacity to help youth gain skills for the future by visiting the Libraries Ready to Code website.

This year, youth can use their imagination to turn a real-life hero into a superhero using code. Code Your Hero is an activity that honors the everyday heroes in our students’ lives who use their powers to better their communities.

Gardiner Library Presents Ukulele Club

The Ukuleleans, led by Jeff Pfeffer meets on the second Wednesday of the month from 7:00 to 9:00 p.m. at the Gardiner Library. This free monthly club is for all ages of ukulele players, from beginner to experienced. The aim is to encourage one another, as group members have fun with this uniquely upbeat instrument. Individuals will also be given the opportunity to perform for the group, if they desire, building confidence to perform in front of audiences.

Jeff Pfeffer has been playing the ukulele for over 20 years, giving lessons to beginners along the way. He has performed locally in nursing homes and hospitals, as well as open mics and other venues. He particularly enjoys Tin Pan Alley, novelty songs, and sing-alongs, with a focus on performance.

Libraries allow children to ask questions about the world and find the answers. And the wonderful thing is that once a child learns to use a library, the doors to learning are always open.

Webinar

✓ Eliminating Fines: A Win-Win for Your Library and Community

Wednesday, November 20 from 3:00 p.m. to 4:00 p.m.

Libraries have traditionally charged overdue fines for three reasons: to generate revenue, to get materials back on time, and to teach responsibility. But what if all of these assumptions are wrong?

In this free webinar, you will discover why these reasons are old fashioned, incorrect notions that create a barrier for many people. You will hear how eliminating fines can lead to an increase in library use and circulation, with no negative effects. Presenters will review the research and results from the growing number of libraries across the country that have ditched late fines and coaxed new and former users to their doors. They will discuss how to gather your libraries' data and patron stories to create advocacy tools. They will share talking points, tips, and an advocacy tool you can use to build a case to eliminate fines in your library. It's a win-win for your library and community!
